CHAPTER 3: THE MIDNIGHT VISITOR

THE MIDNIGHT VISITOR

~Summary~

-by Robert Arthur

Meeting of Secret Agent Ausable and Writer Fowler

Ausable was a smart secret agent, but did not look like one at all, being short and very fat. Fowler was a young writer who wanted to write about Ausable and so spent an evening with him. Fowler was feeling disappointed so far, as he could not find any characteristic of a secret agent in Ausable.

Another Secret Agent Max seen with a Pistol

When both Ausable and Fowler entered Ausable's hotel room, another secret agent named Max was waiting in the room with an automatic pistol pointed at them. Max was there because he had come to know that Ausable was going to receive an important report about some new missiles that night. Max threatened to shoot if Ausable tried to act smart.

Ausable Confuses Max

To ensure the report's safety as well as his own and the writer's safety, Ausable invented a story about anybody entering his room easily through a balcony just below the window in his room. Actually, there was no balcony - if anybody climbed out from the window, he would fall to his death, as the room was on the sixth floor. However, Max told them that he had entered the room through the door using a passkey.

Max Jumps in the Non-existing Balcony and Dies

Suddenly, there was a knocking on the door and Ausable pretended that it was the local police, who had been asked to provide him extra security for the important document he was about to receive. When the knocking was repeated, Max became angry at Ausable and decided to wait in the balcony (which he thought existed until the police went away. He stepped out of the window and fell to his death. When the door opened, a waiter came in with drinks which Ausable had ordered to be delivered to his room when he had returned to the hotel.

Conclusion of The Midnight Visitor

In the chapter – The Midnight Visitor illustrates the fact that one should not panic in a critical situation, rather stay focused to take a wise step in averting the problems with good presence of mind.

Question 1: How is Ausable different from other secret agents?

Answer: Ausable was different from other secret agents in several ways. He had a small room in the musty corridor of a gloomy French hotel that was on the sixth and top floor and it was scarcely a setting for a romantic adventure. He was a sloppy fat man with a weird accent. In spite of living in Paris for over twenty years after moving from Boston, he spoke French and German with great difficulty and had not lost touch of his American accent. Generally, a spy got messages passed secretly to him by beautiful girls, Ausable was not of that kind. He got only a routine telephone call making an appointment. These were some of the ways, he was different from the conventional notion of a secret agent. Besides, in the story we noticed how he dealt with Max by cooking up some stories and convinced him to act accordingly, so that he could get rid of Max forever.

Question 2: Who is Fowler and what is his first authentic thrill of the day?

Answer: Fowler was a young and romantic writer who had come to meet Ausable. He experienced his first authentic thrill of the day when he saw an unknown man in Ausable's room pointing a small automatic pistol towards him and Ausable.

Question 1: How has Max got in?

Answer: Max had got into Ausable's room with the help of a passkey or master key.

Question 2: How does Ausable say he got in?

Answer: Ausable said that he thought Max might have got into the room through the balcony. He said grimly that it was the second time in a month that somebody had got into his room through that nuisance of a balcony.

Questions (Page No. 18)

(THINK ABOUT IT)

Question 1: “Ausable did not fit any description of a secret agent Fowler had ever read.” What do secret agents in books and films look like, in your opinion? Discuss in groups or in class some stories or movies featuring spies, detectives and secret agents, and compare their appearance with that of Ausable in this story. (You may mention characters from fiction in languages other than English. In English fiction you may have come across Sherlock Holmes, Hercule Poirot, or Miss Marple. Have you watched any movies featuring James Bond?)

Answer: Secret agents in fiction are usually projected to be perfect gentlemen who are tall, dark and handsome with awesome speaking skills and an attractive masculine voice. They usually have well-built structures with beautiful women accompanying them. Some spies smoke a pipe (like Sherlock Holmes) or a cigar and they execute death-defying stunts just like in James Bond movies. Such movies show the use of hi-tech gadgets that help in catching the criminals and countering evil villains. Nonetheless, there are some exceptions in the above definition of detectives or spies. One such fine example is the detective character named Feluda which was created by famous Bengali filmmaker, Satyajit Ray. Feluda was a tall, charming and athletic secret agent who had amazing analytical power, eagle-eyed view and superb observation skill.

Question 2: How does Ausable manage to make Max believe that there is a balcony attached to his room? Look back at his detailed description of it. What makes it a convincing story?

Answer: While talking to Fowler, Ausable created a comprehensive description of how his room was part a larger apartment and how the living room that connected through the door had a balcony. He further stated how somebody broke into his office through that balcony earlier and this made it a convincing story for Max to believe instantly. Ausable’s quick wit and calm composure in such a panicky situation made it a more convincing story for Max to believe in.

Question 3: Looking back at the story, when do you think Ausable thought up his plan for getting rid of Max? Do you think he had worked out his plan in detail right from the beginning? Or did he make up a plan taking advantage of events as they happened?

Answer: No, I don’t think that Ausable had thought up his plan earlier to get rid of Max. He maintained his calm composure and took advantage of events and the situation as they happened. He made up a story of the balcony outside the room to convince Max into believing him and then when there was a knock at the door, he said that he had called the police to check on him and make sure that everything was alright. All these things made Max desperate and shiver in fear. He became restless and without checking outside, he jumped out of the window.

Questions (Page No. 18-19)

(TALK ABOUT IT)

Question 1: In this story, Ausable shows great 'presence of mind,' or the ability to think quickly, and act calmly and wisely, in a situation of danger and surprise. Give examples from your own experience, or narrate a story, which shows someone's presence of mind.

Answer: This story has a resemblance to the play 'If I Were You'. A criminal held Gerrard as a hostage. However, Gerrard trapped the criminal with confidence and treated him like a guest. He convinced the criminal to run away from that place as the police was behind him. He showed the criminal the exit door for escaping which was actually a cupboard door. The criminal blindly followed Gerrard's instructions and tried exiting through the door, but was eventually trapped in the cupboard.

Question 2: Discuss what you would do in the situations described below. Remember that presence of mind comes out of a state of mental preparedness. If you have thought about possible problems or dangers, and about how to act in such situations, you have a better chance of dealing with such situations if they do arise.

- A small fire starts in your kitchen.
- A child starts to choke on a piece of food.
- An electrical appliance starts to hiss and gives out sparks.
- A bicycle knocks down a pedestrian.
- It rains continuously for more than twenty-four hours.
- A member of your family does not return home at the usual or expected time.

You may suggest other such situations.

Answer:

1. When a small fire breaks out in the kitchen, it is advisable to use a blanket and put it over the fire to shut out the air. We should carefully observe that if the fire is not due to an electrical problem, water can be splashed on it. If it is due to some electrical short-circuit problem, all the electrical outlets in the house must be disconnected immediately so that the fire doesn't spread unnecessarily to other parts of the house.
2. The child's back should be rubbed and thumped slowly until the piece of food stuck in the food pipe is vomited out. However, in case the child finds difficulty in breathing, he/she should be given trained medical help immediately.
3. As a temporary measure, the electrical outlet connected to the appliance should be immediately disconnected by removing the plug from the socket. Later, an authorised person should be called to repair the appliance and checked thoroughly before using it again.

4. It is advisable to give some first aid to the pedestrian immediately and seek help from people around. If the person has a major injury, he/she could be rushed to the hospital immediately.
5. Excessive rains can cause floods. All necessary precautions should be taken to save all possessions from getting damaged and as a precautionary measure, it is advisable to inform the concerned authorities for necessary action.
6. Just in case a family member does not return home at the usual time, we should enquire at the place where he/she might have visited. We can check at their friend's place or any place they are likely to visit. If none of them are able to give the whereabouts of the family member, it is advisable to inform the local police and file a First Information Report (FIR) and seek help in tracking the person.
